1. Rai Chern Tawan Meditation Center : THB 3,900 per couple

This meditation center is named after one of Thailand's most famous Buddhist monks. Vast, pretty, installed on the edge of a small lake, it is a beautiful place worth visiting. Its main hall in teak wood is superb, the garden with its statues including 4 big monks, one covering his ears, another covering his eyes, another covering his mouth and the other revealing his heart, 4 very well known and widespread representations in Thailand (but here they have much larger dimensions), is really nice. Everything exudes serenity here even the two small coffe shops installed in the complex. If it's a meditation center, many people just come to visit the place, go on the lake, feed the fish or have a coffee in a nice and peaceful setting.

2. Choui Fong Tea Plantation THB 4,300 Per couple

Choui Fong continues to use only the most natural methods in the processing of its tea. All teas are organically grown based on recommended standards as set by the National Bureau of Agricultural Commodity and Food Standards. Other than the tea products which the company offers as a specialty in both bulk and in tea bags, a selection of tea accessories are also on offer to support the various needs and requirements of Choui Fong's valued and ever growing clientele, here in Thailand and in abroad.

Sukhothai Historical Park “UNESCO World Heritage Sites” Sukhothai Historical Park ruins are one of Thailand’s most impressive World Heritage Sites, the ancient town close to the modern city of the same name in North Thailand. The ruins date back to the 13th and 14th Century and in all the 70 square kilometers of the Park contain 193 ruins. Not surprisingly, it is a UNESCO World Heritage site which thousands of people on holiday in Thailand visit each year. The Park opened in 1988 and received UNESCO recognition 3 years later.

Phra Phim or Buddhist votive tablets are renowned as a kind of Buddhist amulets.

In fact, people in the ancient time created these small terracotta images in order to remind Buddha and his teachings. Let's discover and create these meaningful objects

Sangkhalok ceramic wares are distinguished by a characteristic fish motif painted in the center of dishes, bowls, and plates. The clay is coarser, the potting cruder, and fewer techniques and designs are present than in Sawankhalok pieces.
